Features Star Chef is a freeware cooking game made by Neutron Games Inc. as an educational tool for children. It is a sandbox simulator where players can create and manage objects within an infinitely expandable kitchen. Objects can be eaten by hungry characters in the game and, if players let them, they will grow into new objects. There are no recipes or other means of cooking food in the game, though they have been hinted at. Players can also collect money by making items such as cookies or cakes sellable by using the table feature. Players can customize their kitchens with various objects, which are earned and collected as the game progresses. The developer releases frequent updates with new items and features. Reception Star Chef has received mixed reviews. Some reviewers praised its overall gameplay while others criticized its lack of features.
